DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-3, 7, 9, and 11 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-3, 7, 9, and 11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable in view of Kirkevold et al (6,263,322).

Re – Claims 1, 3, 7, 9 and 11: Kirkevold et al discloses a repair order system that operates over a network having a component information database (#32) and owner information database storing the identities of vendors that own replacement parts (Col. 4, lines 55-65), receiving repair requests (from the auto owners coming in for diagnostic and repairs), a repair component (brakes, shocks, engine), a component providing candidate selecting part (management database), a purchase component notifying part (see Col. 6, lines 50-61), a selling component information receiving part (Col. 6, lines 50-61), and a desired selling prices (Col. 6, line 50), a component provider selecting part capable of selecting a component provider from the selected component providing candidate based on the selling component information (Col. 6, lines 58-60), inherent in this reference that a repair fee input part presents the fee's to the requestor (see Flow chart of Figure 3). The only limitation Kirkevold et al does not disclose is where the repair requester inputs a "requested fee" and chooses a supplier of "requested parts" based on the "requested fee". However it is well known to allow a buyer to request any price and allow the seller to either match or dismiss said price (purchase agents are known means for searching and obtaining a desired price see US 2002/0065734 to Kuo; ¶0005 line 6 for instance). It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to allow a buyer to prevent price discrimination.

Re – Claim 2: Kirkevold discloses every aspect of the applicant's invention except an evaluation value calculating part. Scheidt et al teaches that it is known to measure the life cycle of a component within a larger unit and further teaches that it is known to calculate the residual life of part, in order to reuse them or recycle them. (See Col. 1, lines 31-40, Col. 2, lines 14-19; Col. 3, lines 39-45; Col. 3, lines 65- Col. 4, line 7). It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art, at the time the invention was made to measure and calculate the product life cycles as taught by Scheidt into the invention of Kirkevold for the purpose of reducing the costs of purchasing replacement parts.
